In his childhood's happy home; Of glad hours spent by the fireside's blaze, When he had not thought to roam. There stood the homestead 'mong the hills,

With ivy all mantled o'er; And two clm trees with their stately boughs There was the garden, flowers and birds;

And e'en the rude old well; Where the bucket hung near the mossy brim, Or quick to the bottom fell, He sat again with the fireside group Around the old hearthstone;

And the chorus clear rang out on the air, As they sang the evening song. He saw his mother's gentle smile, And heard her kindly tone;

He played once more at the open door, When his daily task was done. He heard his father's aged voice. Breathing the evening prayer; And the final word, the last he heard, Linger'd still on his ear.

He woke, the dream of youth had passed The prayer was done, the forms were gone, And the cottage on the hill.

FIRST BABIES .- A somewhat exten-$531,400 00 ded observation and a solitary experi-ence have convinced us that first babies have a hard time. Parents must have two or three children before they know what a baby is, know how to treat it, and acquire patience sufficient to treat it properly. The poor little fellows that have the misfor-33,000 00 tune to come along first have to educate parents to their task, and in the ucate parents to their task, and in the process they get spanked and shaked and abused. After a man has three or four children he learns that whipping, or striking a child less than two years of age is barbarous. We know one "paternal head" who struck his first child when only six weeks old, the ass actually believing that the child knew better than to ery, and that he stopped crying at that partcular time because he struck him. certain notions of children and of family government into married life, and the first child is always the victim of these notions. And not alone of these, for the parents have not learned self-control, and a baby is whipped about as often because the parent is impatient or angry, as because it is vicious or intractable. We inflict on our first children the floggings we ought to have for our own impatience or fretfulness. This pounding chilought to have for our own impatience or fretfulness. This pounding children before they become, in God's eye morally responsible beings, is very strange business. Patience, good people—unwearying patience! Don't wait to learn it until one of your little ones shall be hidden under the daisies!—
